Early leaders of the movement, such as Phoebe Palmer and A.B. Simpson, played pivotal roles in shaping its distinctive doctrines and practices. They believed in the possibility of a second blessing, or "entire sanctification," which they viewed as a transformative experience that enabled believers to live a life free from sin.

- Justification and Sanctification: The distinction between the legal declaration of righteousness (justification) and the ongoing process of becoming holy (sanctification).
- Entire Sanctification: The belief that believers can experience a second blessing that empowers them to live a life free from sin.
- Biblical Inerrancy: The belief that the Bible is the inspired and infallible Word of God.
- Separation from the World: The emphasis on living a distinct and holy lifestyle, avoiding worldly influences.

Diverse Practices

The Conservative Holiness Movement is characterized by a variety of practices that express its distinctive beliefs. These practices include:

- Prayer and Bible Study: A strong emphasis on personal and corporate prayer and the study of Scripture.
- Testimony: The sharing of personal experiences of God's grace and transformative power.
- Baptism and the Lord's Supper: The practice of water baptism and the regular observance of the Lord's Supper as sacraments.
- Glossolalia: The practice of speaking in tongues, believed to be a supernatural gift of the Holy Spirit.
- Holy Living: An emphasis on living a life of holiness, marked by humility, purity, and obedience.
