

Weird Rooms by Mal Sharpe

Weird Rooms is a collection of short stories by Mal Sharpe. The stories are all set in strange, off-kilter rooms, and they explore themes of isolation, loneliness, and the search for meaning.

The title story, "Weird Rooms," is about a man who moves into a new apartment and discovers that the rooms are constantly changing. The walls move, the doors disappear, and the furniture is never quite where he left it. The man becomes increasingly isolated and lonely as he tries to make sense of his ever-changing surroundings.
