I was 10 years old when I first heard the Beatles. It was 1963, and their song "I Want to Hold Your Hand" was all over the radio. I was instantly hooked. I loved the catchy melody, the driving beat, and the harmonies. I couldn't get enough of them.

I started buying all of their records, and I would listen to them over and over again. I would sing along to the songs, and I would dream of seeing them live one day.

In 1964, my dream came true. The Beatles were playing a concert in my hometown, and I was able to get tickets. I was so excited, I could hardly contain myself.

The concert was everything I had hoped for and more. The Beatles were even better live than they were on record. They had so much energy, and they played all of their hits. I was in heaven.

After the concert, I was able to meet the Beatles backstage. They were just as friendly and down-to-earth as I had imagined. I got their autographs, and I took a picture with them. It was a moment I will never forget.

I continued to follow the Beatles throughout their career. I saw them play live several more times, and I collected all of their records and memorabilia. I was a die-hard fan.

The Beatles broke up in 1970, but their music has continued to inspire me. Their songs are timeless, and they have touched the lives of millions of people around the world.

In this book, I share my memories of the Beatles. I write about seeing them live, meeting them backstage, and collecting their records and memorabilia. I also share my thoughts on their music and their legacy.

I hope you enjoy this book. It is a labor of love, and it is my way of saying thank you to the Beatles for all the joy they have brought into my life.
